The Smitty Bee Process

Honey is harvested by beekeepers from all over the world.

Raw honey is shipped to Smitty Bee's warehouse. Samples are pulled and sent to multiple third party labs.

Honey undergoes extensive testing to ensure it meets strict food safety and ethical standards.

Once honey is approved, it is blended and strained according to customer specifications.

Customer orders are placed and honey is packaged according to customer's retail, food service and commercial ingredient requirements.

About the Hive

What began as a family hobby in the 1920s is now a well-respected, fourth generation family operation. Our strong relationships with suppliers, total commitment to quality and food safety standards show in every pound of our retail, food service and commercial honey products.

A combination of in-house and third party lab testing ensures food safety and quality standards. Honey is not released for production until it undergoes rigorous reviews and lotting procedures. Our traceability program further allows us to monitor and maintain the high quality of our honey.

While our company continues to grow, we remain focused on ethical small town values, hard work and customer commitment. These are the core principles that have built Smitty Bee Honey.

Our Capabilities

We offer a variety of innovative packaging options and design support to give your product shelf presence.

- Customized Packaging

Private Label

We take pride in serving Private Label brands. By providing flexible packaging solutions, a long-standing commitment to quality, and certifications ranging from non-GMO to kosher, we are fully equipped to maximize the shelf presence of your brand.

Size & Container

Finding the right size and material for your private label is easy with numerous options available including our bear, inverted, queenline, and paragon glass product lines. Our sizes range from 8 ounce jars to 40 ounce squeeze jars to ensure the needs of the consumer are being met.

Plastic or Glass? The various choices of material allows for a product presentation that is uniquely suited to your brand.

Labeling

Smitty Bee has design resources available for creating distinctive custom labels, bringing your brand to life and making it stand out on the shelf.

Unique Identity

Our custom blending process allows us to formulate a batch of honey that is tailored for each customer. We match color and flavor profiles to achieve unique, yet uniform results. No matter the size of order, we ensure every client gets the exact custom blend specified every time.

Custom Blending

Our team takes the time to achieve the perfect custom honey from blends to single source varieties. Whether it's a certain color, flavor or price point, every brand's unique requirements will be met. You can always count on 100% pure Grade A honey, available with kosher and organic certifications.

Co-packing

Smitty Bee Honey is a valuable resource for co-packing programs. Our services include the ability to process and package not only honey, but also agave, maple, molasses and other syrups. Container options range in a number of sizes from glass to plastic. With our co-packing, clients can depend on flexible production schedules.
